

Vocal Rockets Delay Senate Action on Tariff

Progress on Hemp, Flax and Jute and Cotton Schedules Halted While Protectionists Make Speeches

Adopt Rate on Hemp

Gooding Says Measure Would Speed Industry and Help the 3,500,000 Unemployed

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, July 19.—More than four hours of speeches and political fireworks delayed progress to-day on the hemp, flax and jute schedule and on the cotton schedule of the tariff bill.

Senator Gooding, of Idaho, spoke for two hours and twenty-four minutes, making a high protectionist speech of the old-fashioned variety. He went to the point of declaring for an embargo on every manufactured article that American labor can produce. Senator Ladd, of North Dakota, spoke for an hour and thirty minutes in advocacy of recognition of the Oregon government of Mexico.

These Republican Senators having spoken on other than the pending question, which was an amendment to the hemp, flax and jute schedule, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democrat, took the floor, first for five minutes, then for about three-quarters of an hour, to lambast the Republicans for filibustering against the tariff bill and trying to delay it. Considerably to the amusement of Senators, he scored Senators Gooding and Ladd for not sticking to the pending question. He insisted Senators ought to hasten a vote on the tariff bill.

Rate on Hemp Adopted

After the session of general debate Senator Robinson sought to obtain a reduction from the committee rates in the first paragraph of the flax, hemp and jute schedule. He suggested reduction of the duty on hemp from two cents a pound, as proposed by the committee, to one-fourth of a cent. A long discussion of the amendment was sustained. The Robinson amendment was voted down, 38 to 19, and the committee rate adopted, 39 to 17.

The Senate then reverted to the cotton schedule. Senator Smoot, for the committee, proposed a duty of 50 per cent ad valorem on labels for garments and other articles. Senator Smith declared this doubled the duty and called it "intolerable" that such an increase should be made on the duty on labels merely. Senator Smoot also protested, but the committee was sustained.

Under Paragraph 913 the committee was sustained in raising the duty from 35 per cent, the House rate, to 60 per cent on knit fabrics, out of which some forms of cotton gloves are made. Without much controversy the clothing rate in Paragraph 918 was reduced from 45 per cent, the committee figure, to 35 per cent, and the shirts, collars and cuffs rate from 15 per cent to 10.

It is expected the cotton schedule will be completed to-morrow and consideration of the flax, hemp and jute schedule resumed.

Senator Gooding, of Idaho, in his speech declared a new milestone had been reached in the life of this country.

On the first duty an organized government owes to its citizens," he said, "is that of giving an opportunity for employment to those who are willing to work for the comforts and necessities of life."

Tariff Bill Would Help Industry

He believed the tariff bill now pending would do much toward starting the wheels of industry, but he did not believe any tariff bill, regardless of how high the duties, would give some of the industries "proper protection" under a system of foreign valuation.

He blamed the free trade policy of the Democratic party for the conditions in agriculture and attacked the Democratic policy as to wool, the livestock industry and agriculture in general. He said the emergency tariff law had "worked almost like magic" in reviving the sheep industry.

Senator Gooding declared all of Europe was increasing duties and laying embargoes, and that this was being done in all countries.

"If I had my way," he said, "I would do what every other country is doing, and make the duty so high that there would be a complete embargo against every manufactured article that can be produced in this country by our own labor."

To make the situation in this country a serious one, I will not say it is a dangerous one, but it may become a dangerous one unless we give the producers an opportunity to start the wheels of industry and the great army of the unemployed an opportunity to earn a living."

Ten-Year-Old Rescues Father Buried Under Sewer Cave-In

Though they had never heard of him until yesterday, everybody in Montclair, N. J., knows to-day who ten-year-old Joseph Caputo is.

Joseph proved himself a hero in the afternoon by saving the life of his father, Anthony, after a sewer embankment on Clover Hill Place, Montclair, had caved in and buried the father under an avalanche of soft earth.

Anthony Caputo and his son live at 38 Sherman Street, Montclair. When Caputo took his shovel and started for Clover Hill Place ten-year-old Joseph went with him, not because he could be of any help, but just because he wanted to be with his father. Caputo descended into an eight-foot trench and began to shovel dirt. The scoping-out process held the boy's attention for a time, but he finally turned away from the trench and began playing in the street. Caputo went on with his digging.

Suddenly the embankment shoring gave way with a roar, and a ton of dirt poured into the eight-foot ditch. Joseph heard the roar of the cave-in and realized instantly that his father was buried beneath the pile. He rushed to the trench, grabbed a shovel and leaped into the pit. He began digging frantically and sent shovel after shovel of dirt flying from the trench. With each upward thrust of his small arms he yelled for help.

He dug away until he had shoveled off enough dirt with his father's head and face to prevent suffocation, and was still working feverishly and furiously when passerby, who had heard his cries, reached the trench.

They took the shovel from Joseph's hands, lifted him from the pit and took up the job where he left off. They soon scaped away enough of the dirt to drag Caputo to the street level. The father was unconscious and was taken to Mountsinai Hospital suffering from shock and three broken ribs.

When he recovered consciousness he found his ten-year-old son at his bedside.

Hughes Tells Holt Road Into League Is Closed to U. S.

Reaffirms Harding's Stand on Supr.-Government; Declares Situation Must Be Met in Another Way

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE TRIBUNE
WASHINGTON, July 19.—Secretary Hughes to-day addressed a second letter to Hamilton Holt, president of the Woodrow Wilson Democracy, giving further light on the attitude of the Harding Administration toward the League of Nations. The Secretary declares that the way of the United States to membership in the league is now closed and that the situation must be dealt with in accordance with new conditions. He says any agitation in that direction would be fruitless and only serve to renew a dispute that can do no good.

Mr. Hughes says that the separate Treaty with Germany was negotiated in haste, and that the administration that the resubmission of the Treaty of Versailles to the United States would prolong the discussion endlessly. He asserts that the signing of a separate Treaty with Germany was the only way out of the difficulty.

In his letter the Secretary says: "In your observations you seem to imply that we have been invested with some authority to make this government a member of the League of Nations upon such reservations as I might propose. If you have any such notion, I must be very busy, you mind of it. Entrance into the League of Nations upon any conditions could be accomplished only by Treaty, and treaties cannot be made except in the constitutional manner."

"It is idle to propose what it is found cannot be effected. That it is not the way to make progress, internationally or otherwise. What I said with respect to the treaty with Germany is applicable."

"Really I cannot see any reason why you should address me in the manner you have chosen, in view of the fact that the attitude of the Administration upon this subject was frankly and definitely stated in President Harding's message to Congress in April, 1922. The President said: 'The League of Nations, this republic will have no part. There can be no misinterpretation, and there will be no betrayal of the delicate expression of the American people in the recent elections; and settled in our decision for ourselves, it is only fair to say to the world in general, and to our associates in war in particular, that the League Covenant can have no sanction by us.'"

"The aim to associate nations to prevent war, preserve peace, and promote civilization, our people most cordially applauded. We yearned for this new instrument of justice, but we can have no part in a commitment to an agency of force in unknown contingencies, which we can recognize no super-authority."

Shell Bursts, Injuring Four in Newark Office

Four persons were injured and the neighborhood thrown into an uproar when a one-pound Hotchkiss shell exploded in the offices of the Green Waste Company, in Newark, yesterday. The injured are Max Green, president of the company; his son, Harry, and two junkmen, Louis Baum and Barney Scholk.

The shell was brought in to the company's yard in a load of junk purchased by a member of the office force and was brought into the building. When the projectile exploded the four men were in the office together.

Treaties to Protect U. S. In Mandate Territories

Will Be Similar to One With Japan on Yap and Will Assure Open Door

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, July 19.—Assurances have been received by the government that American rights in mandate territories will be protected fully by the negotiation of treaties with the mandatory authority designated by the League of Nations, it was revealed officially to-day. The discussions which American Ambassadors Harvey at London and Herriot at Paris have been having with the British and French Foreign Offices, it was said, have progressed to the stage where the powers have agreed that American interests in mandated territories were legitimate and that the negotiation of treaties, such as the one between Japan and the United States covering the island of Yap, would soon be started.

It was pointed out to-day that the powers in considering the mandates for former Turkish territories found they could not definitely dispose of this question pending a treaty with Mexico. King Christian in Constantinople, which has not yet been negotiated. As to East Africa, Togoland and the Cameroons, the American principle that nationals of the United States are not members of the League of Nations, was conceded.

In the treaties to be negotiated between the United States and the Allied powers designated as the mandatory authorities, it will be specifically stated that no nation will be privileged to monopolize the resources of the mandate countries, that the open door will prevail, and that the rights of American missionaries and religious institutions will be recognized.

Italian Don Juan, Accused of Bigamy, To Be Deported

Married Here, Said to Have Wife Abroad; Served in Civil and Military Jails and Is Unfrosted Priest

Dominic Simeone, describing himself as a writer and student, was arrested yesterday by Federal officers in an apartment at 121 Baxter Street and taken to Ellis Island pending deportation proceedings.

The arrest followed an investigation conducted by Assistant District Attorney Joseph L. Conroy, of Queens, into charges made by Maria Pinto Simeone, of 15 Franklin Street, Astoria. The young woman told Mr. Conroy that she had married Simeone in Italy, where the police say he is registered as a man of moral turpitude. The Chief of Police of Salerno certifies that Simeone is an impostor. He studied for the priesthood, according to this communication, was admitted to the priesthood, was later unfrosted and excommunicated from the Roman Church. He is also said to have a wife and two children in Salerno.

The District Attorney has also received a communication from the Tribunal at Avellino, which states that Simeone served a jail sentence there in 1916 for an offense against public decency by writing; also a three months' jail term for insubordination, inflicted by the military authorities. In January, 1917, he was sentenced to pay a heavy fine for usurpation of a title.

In May last Simeone was arraigned on charges of bigamy, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Long Island City Court, charged with non-support. He told Magistrate James Conway he was connected with a distinguished Italian family, but had been unfortunate. The investigation of his career was begun then.

Mexican Children Urge Reopening of Schools

JUAREZ, Mexico, July 19.—More than one hundred small children voluntarily banded themselves together and stormed the City Hall to-day, asking for the city schools to be opened. They had tried to go to school, but had found all doors closed.

For two months there has been little money in the city treasury, so the teachers, some in dire need, decided to quit teaching to force the city and state officials to pay and re-employ them.

The Chamber of Commerce has agreed to help obtain funds to permit the reopening of schools.
